² Pesach (Passover), beginning of Chag haMatzot (Feast of Unleavened Bread), beginning "between the evenings," about the last quarter of the daytime hours of Aviv 14.

³ Aviv 15, 1st day of Chag Matzot/Feast of Unleavened Bread, a weekly and an annual Shabbat

⁴ Aviv 16, Feast of Firstfruits, not a Shabbat, the morning of Yahushua's resurrection on the first day of the beginning of the counting the 50 days of the blessed omer, towards Chag Shavuot (The Feast of Weeks).

⁵ Aviv 21, the last day of Chag Matzot, an annual Shabbat, which is followed next day by the weekly Shabbat

⁶ Chag Shavuot, the 50th day of the counting of the omer, which comes day 6 of the 3rd moon, an annual Shabbat.

⁷ Fast of 4th moon, day 17, commemorating that Nevuchadnetsar's troops made a breach in the defensive wall .around Yahrushalayim,586 Before the Common Error.

⁹Fast of Gedalyahu, 7th moon 4th day, commemorating his murder by Yishmael when Nevuzaradan had left Gedalyahu in charge of those left in Yahrushalayim.

¹¹Moon 7 day 15, a weekly and annual Shabbat opening Chag Sukkot/Feast of Tabernacles.

Aviv 1-New Years Day	5:38AM Wed 4/10/13	7:02 Wed. 4/10/13

¹³Moon 9, day 25, 1st day of Chanukah, an 8-day celebration of the retaking and rededication of the House of Yahuwah. It was 8 days long to commemorate the Chag Sukkot and Shemini Atzeret that they couldn't celebrate because of the Hellenistic oppression.

¹⁴ Fast of the 10th moon, 10th day, commemorating the beginning of the siege of Yahrushalayim by Nevuchadnetsar in 586 Before the Common Error.

¹⁵ The 13th moon is necessary in order, per Devarim/Deuteronomy 16:1, to guard both Aviv and Pesach, that they both be in the spring, after the teqfat-hashana/turn of the year/vernal equinox and not in winter. Spring cannot begin in winter. A 13th month is added about every 3 years, based on the heavenly signs not the pre-calculations of the Jewish calendar.

¹⁶ Fast of Hadassah/Esther, commemorating the fast she requested of the people through Mordechai before presenting a plea to save her people Yahudah from the plans of Haman ben Agag.

¹⁷ Moon 12 (or moon 13 in 13-moon years), days 14 and 15, so as to include the weekly Shabbat in the observation of Purim, celebrating the victory that Yahuwah provided through the intervention of Queen Hadassah over Haman ben Agag and his forces, who wanted to annihilate the Jewish people of the Persian kingdom.
